CATILINAIRES

Les Belles Lettres, 2012. Couverture souple. Book Condition: Neuf. Texte établi par Henri Bornecque et traduit du latin par Edouard Bailly. Introduction et notes par Jean-Noël Robert. Collection Classiques en Poche. XXXVI - 188 pages. Présentation de l'éditeur: " En 63 avant notre ère, la République romaine vit des heures explosives. Les divisions politiques, l'accroissement de la misère, l'omniprésence de la violence touchent tous les degrés de la société. Il ne manque qu'un chef pour cueillir les fruits de la déliquescence de l'État, provoquer une révolution et précipiter Rome dans les affres d'une guerre civile. Ce meneur, dévoré de haine et d'ambition, est un patricien ruiné, charismatique et débauché, Lucius Sergius Catilina. Face à lui, un « homme nouveau », un consul qui manie l'art oratoire avec maestria, un avocat qui a su faire de ses phrases des armes redoutables, Cicéron. En quatre discours, ce maître des mots va chasser Catilina, retourner le peuple et du moins croit-il sauver la République. À travers ces Catilinaires, c'est l'histoire du plus formidable complot jamais ourdi contre l'État romain qui s'écrit, pour la plus grande gloire de leur auteur."
