In the spring of 1897 I operated in the Charity Hospital upon a young colored woman for a sarcoma of the thoracic wall requiring the resection of several inches of the third, fourth, and fifth ribs. It was impossible to separate the tumor from the pleura without tearing the latter; a rent of five inches was made, which permitted easily the thrusting of the whole hand into the pleural cavity. Suddenly was presented to our anxious view one of the most startling clinical pictures that the surgeon can ever be called upon to witness. At such a sight the stoutest heart will quaver. No wonder the older surgeons discountenanced such operations, and in the times when there was neither anaesthetic nor asepsis the surgeon might well be excused for indorsing the condemnation uttered by Dieffenbach against Milton Antony for his temerity in venturing to remove a tumor of the chest-wall with a large piece of the lung. This Dieffenbach pronounced the greatest error in this field of surgery, and he added that the like operations go too much counter to all physiology and give to the beautiful saving art the appearance of cruel annihilation-mechauics.
