Excerpt: .the Musselmen, that Europe has ceased to be invaded by these infidels. Hungary owes to us its safety, and Italy its preservation; far different, in this respect, from our enemies, whose conquests are only a new subject of dissention and war with their neighbours. This is the substance of the memorable speech which the emperor Alexander pronounced in the assembly of the nobles; and which the orator most judiciously repeated, as best calculated to rouse the courage of those who had not been present. Count Rastopchin, who hitherto had listened with silent attention, seeing that the inhabitants of Moscow were sufficiently prepared, rose immediately from his seat, and, running to the balcony, which opened on the great square, he thus addressed the people there assembled: --1 Brave Moscovites! Our enemy advances; and you already hear the roar of the cannon, not far from our suburbs....
