From Content: So when I think of my sturdy Puritan forbears in the summer planting of Salem and of Boston, I see them in honest russet kersey; gay too with the bright stamell-red of their waistcoats and the grain-red linings of mandillions; scarlet-capped are they, and enlivened with many a great scarlet-hooded cloak. I see them in this attire on shipboard, where they were greeted off Salem with a smell from the shore like the smell of a garden; I see them landing in happy June amid sweet wild strawberries and fair single roses. I see them walking along the little lanes and half-streets in which for many years bayberry and sweet-fern lingered in dusty fragrant clumps by the roadside. Scented with Caedar and Sweet Fern From Heats reflection dry, wrote of that welcoming shore one colonist who came on the first ship, and noted in rhyme what he found and saw and felt and smelt. And I see the forefathers standing under the hot little cedar trees of the Massachusetts coast, not sober in sad color, but cheery in russet and scarlet; and sweetbrier and strawberries, bayberry and cedar, smell sweetly and glow genially in that summer sunlight which shines down on us through all these two centuries. We have ample sources from which to learn precisely what was worn by these first colonists--men and women--gentle and simple. We have minute Lists of Apparell furnished by the Colonization Companies to the male colonists; we have also ample lists of apparel supplied to individual emigrants of varied degree; we have inventories in detail of the personal estates of all those who died in the colonies even in the earliest years--inventories wherein even...
